THE STEELERS SEASON BOOK PLAN

Season Books:

You can purchase a book of six tickets for all the Steelers home games any time from the end of the season right up through the first week of September.

Naturally, the best seats are secured if you get your season ticket early. All 1954 season ticket holders may hold their same location or reserve their right for a better spot by renewing their order right after the season, or before the deadline of each year.

Season Books are priced at $22.00 for seats in first tier reserved, second tier reserved and first tier boxes. Second and third tier boxes sell for $31.20 each seat and some first tier box and reserve seats and left field bleacher reserved seats sell for $15.00 each.

Single Game:

Tickets for all Steeler home games go on sale simultaneously in the first week of August. Single Game tickets are priced at $2.00, $3.00, $4.25, and $6.00. (Pre-Season game ticket prices are slightly lower.) All prices include tax.

Gift Certificates:

Season Books of six tickets for all Steeler home games may be secured at the standard prices prevailing above. They make ideal gifts for Christmas, birthdays, anniversaries and all other occasions for young and old alike. Attractive gift certificates are available at all times at no additional cost.

Mail Orders:

Mail orders will be filled promptly if accompanied by money order or check. Be sure to add 35 cents for handling, postage and registry fee.

Out-of-Town Games:

Tickets for any Steeler out-of-town game may be secured at our ticket offices, 521 Grant Street, one week before scheduled date of game.

For Any Ticket Information:

Direct all ticket inquiries to Joseph H. Carr, Ticket Manager, Pittsburgh Steelers Football Club, 521 Grant Street, Pittsburgh 19, Pa. The office is open daily (Except Sunday and Holidays), 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

COACHING STAFF

WALTER KIESLING

(Head Coach)

Come this autumn, the National Football League will celebrate its 36th year of operation.

And for 30 of those 36 seasons, Walter Kiesling, the broad-shouldered, soft-spoken head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, has taken an active part in pro football's developments.

Although not one of the founding fathers, Big Kies has devoted the greater part of his 52 years to a game which had its beginnings on the rock-studded sandlots and when the spoils were what itinerant fans put in the hat. Today, thanks to many Walter Kieslings, the sport has developed into a solvent, big league operation.

Kiesling grew up in St. Paul, Minnesota. He was a good, all-around athlete and he was bigger than all the other kids. He developed into a great high school football star and was offered a chance to play at Notre Dame.

But his mother felt that South Bend, Indiana, was too far from the Twin Cities and Kies entered St. Thomas College in his own backyard. He was a standout in both football and baseball and, for a time, it looked like he would devote his full talents to Abner Doubleday's game.

Upon graduation, he moved along rapidly in baseball and shortly found himself the property of Minneapolis in the fast American Association, one step below the major leagues. He was a first baseman.

Kies recalls that everything was going along smoothly until some smart pitcher found he couldn't hit the curve. And, as soon as the word got around, Kies packed his bag and returned to football.

His first football job was with the Duluth Eskimos. He spent two seasons there before moving to Pottsville, Pennsylvania.

Then, he spent five seasons with the Chicago Cardinals, two with the Chicago Bears and one with the Green Bay Packers. In 1932, while playing with the Cards, he was named all-league tackle.

He first came to Pittsburgh in 1937 to join forces with the legendary Johnny Blood, who was then player-coach of the Rooney men. When Blood stepped out in 1939, Kies took over as head coach and in 1942, his team just missed winning the Eastern championship.

In 1943, he served as co-coach of the Phil-Pitt combine and in 1944, he held a similar post when the Cardinals and Steelers merged. He then returned to the Packers as an assistant coach and remained in Green Bay until returning to Pittsburgh in 1949. He worked as an assistant coach until just before the beginning of the 1954 campaign when he was given the head master duties once again.

HERMAN BALL

(Assistant Coach)

This year will mark Herman Ball's twelfth season in the National Football League, but only his first with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

During the other eleven years, Herman labored in the fields for George Preston Marshall's Washington Redskins. He started as a game scout in 1944 and later became a full-time assistant coach.

He was the Redskins' headmaster during part of the '49 season, all of '50 and part of '51. When he stepped down as head coach, he took over the scouting duties and kept tab on the future pros still playing in the colleges.

Ball has spent his stay with the Steelers on the road. Already, he has traveled over 10,000 miles and innumerable college campuses getting information on the pro players of tomorrow.

He was born in Elkins, West Virginia, and attended Davis-Elkins College. He first gained coaching recognition when he guided Allegheny High in Cumberland, Maryland, to eight successive championships.

From there, he entered the college ranks, going to the University of Maryland to serve as an assistant under Dr. Clarence (Doc) Spears, (1943-44); Paul Bryant, (1945), and Clark Shaughnessy, (1946).

It is the opinion of many experts that Ball is as well-founded in the T-formation offense as any man in the country.

And when he isn't pushing his way into some football stadium or practice field, he spends his time at his Hyattsville, Maryland home.

NICK SKORICH

(Assistant Coach)

Most of the football authorities who know Nick Skorich rate him as a fellow with a great future in this strange business of x's and o's.

Nick made his first impression in the professional league back in 1946 when the late Dr. Jock Sutherland was the Pittsburgh Steelers' head coach.

Skorich was small. He was about five-eight and weighed only 200 pounds. Hardly any weight at all for a guard. But he caught the Doctor's eye with his hard work and, more important, his mastery of the intricate Sutherland system.

"Some day," Jock said, "this young fellow will be a great coach. Not only does he know his own assignments, but he is familiar with every other assignment. He works at this game."

When Skorich retired as an active player, he became head coach at Central Catholic high school in Pittsburgh and within a short time had the city's championship team.

For one season, Skorich was the head coach at Renssalaer Polytechnical College. He left there in 1954 to join the Steelers. In addition to his coaching duties, he also is rated a top scout.

He's married and the father of two youngsters.

BOB SNYDER

(Assistant Coach)

In 1936, Bob Snyder started his professional football career in Pittsburgh. He played with the Pittsburgh Amerks in the American Football League—a league that operated only five games.

"But I only got paid for two," Snyder said sadly. "And despite the short pay days, I've always enjoyed Pittsburgh and I always wanted to come back."

Snyder, a thickset gentleman who celebrated his 42nd birthday anniversary last February, played at Ohio University in the mid-thirties. He was a tailback with triple-threat equipment.

After his brief stay with the Amerks, he joined the Cleveland Rams and later was traded to the Chicago Bears. At this juncture, George Halas, the Bears' head coach, converted him into a T quarterback.

He became so adept at this trade that in 1942, Halas sent him on a lend-lease plan to Notre Dame. There he helped Frank Leahy install the T.

Subsequently, he became backfield coach of the Rams, which switched the franchise to Los Angeles in 1946. During the 1947-48 seasons, he was that team's head tutor.

Snyder also has worked in college ranks, both at Toledo and Villanova, and for one season was headmaster at Calgary in the Canadian circuit.

He will spend most of his time working with the Steelers quarterbacks. In this capacity, he has helped such stars as Johnny Lujack, Angelo Bertelli, Bob Waterfield and Indian Jack Jacobs.

He's a native of Toledo, Ohio and is the father of four youngsters.
